SUDDEN DEATH OF PROMINENT MUSICIAN ON SATURDAY EVENING

Fred C. Lindauer Dies Soon After Being Stricken with Fatal Illness

PLAYING IN THEATRE AT TIME

Fred G. Lindauer, more popularly known as "Freddie," died very suddenly Saturday evening last from an attack of acute indigestion. Mr. Lindeaur was engaged at the Coyle theatre at the time, and when his fatal illness overtook him was seated at the piano playing for the show that was then on.

Earlier in the evening, about 7 o'clock, Mr. Lindeaur had complained to Manager Coyle about feeling ill, who at once telephoned for Dr. Sickman. On his arrival the physician prescribed, and Lindeaur in a short time said he felt much better. He resumed his duties and played steadily until 10 o'clock. At that time he was in the lobby talking with Manager Coyle, who had given him the pay envelopes for members of the orchestra.

Mr. Lindeaur then returned to the theatre and began playing for the final show, when he was suddenly stricken. One of the orchestra members came out for Manager Coyle, who immediately came into the theatre, only to see Lindeaur, fall from his seat. Manager Coyle again telephoned for Dr. Sickman, who responded immediately, and the stricken man was carried up stairs to his apartments in the Coyle building. On the way up, however, just as the party reached the top of the stairs, Mr. Lindeaur passed away.

The deceased was considered one of the most accomplished pianists in very section of the valley, and was very proficient not only as a player but as a teacher. He had a large circle of acquaintances, who were shocked to hear of his sudden death. Mr. Lindeaur came to Charleroi about 16 years ago from the east, his former home having been in the vicinity of Boston.

He issurvived by his wife, one daughter and one son, two sisters and two brothers living in Boston and one sister living in San Francisco

He was a member of the Monessen Moose and Eagles and also of the Musicans' Protective Union, No. 592, A. F. M.

TO MAKE REPORT ON HIGHWAY CONDITIONS

A system whereby the weather bureas of Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Harrisburg, Scranton, Erie and other cities will notify the State Highway Department of conditions in their vicinities, especially changes overnight, and the state in turn give information on road conditons, so that persons and companies interested in truck and motor vehicle traffic may be informed, has been worked out by the highway officials and will be put into effect December 1. This is part of a plan by which the main highways with hard surfaces may be kept open all winter

In fighting snow the state will use 80 heavy trucks, 60 snowplows and 50 road machines, together with many teams. Its road force will report on the road conditions and word will thus be passed along The Lincoln and William Penn highways, the National Pike and other important highways will be covered by this service, the most comprehensive yet planned. Farmers, manufacturers organizations, clubs and those interested in hauling raw materials and food by trucks will be kept in touch.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS ARE GIVEN HEAVY FINES

The Federal courts in Pittsburgh are showing a disposition to impose heavier fines and sentences on violators of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment. Heavy fines and jail sentences were imposed upon violators of the liquor regulations last week by Judge Charles P. Orr in the United States District Court Most of the defendants were from Erie and had pleaded guilty. In passing sentence Judge Orr called attention to the fact that in the past only light fines had been imposed upon Volstead act violators, but, he added "in spite of all the notice the public has had, the offenses are increasing."

FORD SEDAN MAKES A RUNAWAY TRIP

A new Ford sedan, standing in front of the Wall Motor Company garage, Fallowfield avenue, Saturday evening last, decided to take an unannounced trip. The car had been left with the motor running, when unexpectedly it started down the avenue, gaining speed as it went along. Crossing Fourth street it "sheered" to the right, and striking the curb in front of Master's grocery, started up over the pavement. In its rush it knocked down two of the iron supports holding up the porch in front of the building and was about to dispose of the third one, when it was stopped by Harry Frye. The supports were placed back in position at once and the car was taken to its proper place. It was only slightly damaged by the collision

Baum was elected president.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS MURDER OF FARMER

Officers investigating the murder of Steve Mago, aged 35, an Italian farmer of near Clarksville, believe that he was a victim of the "Black-hand" organization. Two Italians are being sought but have not yet been arrested.

Mago's lifeless body was discovered on a motorcycle just outside the borough of South Brownsville on Saturday morning last. Several persons passing along the road had noticed the man on the machine but never suspected that he had been the victim of a foul crime.

Two bullet holes in the head made by the cartridges from a 25-calibre automatic had caused Mago's death. That he had been instantly killed was certain from the character of the wounds and the fact that he fell forward on his arms, the latter resting on the handle bars of the machine.

Police are of the opinion that Mago was lured just outside the limits of South Brownsville and that an unknown man who was a passenger in the side car, there fired the two shots which caused the death of the unsuspecting man.

Inquiry at Mago's home developed the fact that he left there at 5 o'clock Saturday morning to bring his brother-in-law to the station at South Brownsville to catch a train. The brother-in-law has disappeared The murdered man is survived by a wife and two children. He had lived in the Clarksville section for about three years.

Lack of Practice on Part of Locals Allows Visitors to Score

LAST HOME GAME NEXT FRIDAY

Saturday afternoon last the Charleroi High school football team defeated the Westinghouse Tech Students' Associatiod by a score of 20 to 6, in a game poorly played on both sides. It is charged that some of the local players have not been practicing regularly and as a result they were not able to put up the game on Saturday they are capable of. Coach Stahlman, it is said, proposes going after these players and see that they get much needed practice.

In the first quarter neither team scored, the battle being about even, with the locals having a slight edge. Two end runs by Dennis featured this quarter.

In the second quarter Charleroi outplayed the visitors and marched down the field with the ball, Brown finally making a touchdown. He failed to kick goal, and the score was 6-0. Then the locals kicked to the Westinghouse boys. Brown made a fine kick, the ball alighting near the visitors' goal line, from where it rolled back of the line. The visiting players did not appear to know what to do, so they stood near the ball, doing the Gaston-Alphonse act. Meanwhile Wagner ran up and fell on the ball for a touchdown, and Brown kicked for an extra point.

The locals then kicked and then the visitors began making Charleroi look like a sieve. If the line had not "been there" the visitors would have gotten through with the same ease. The Westinghouse Boys marched down the field for a touchdown, Dearbeck making the score. They failed to kick goal.

In the fourth quarter Lee made a touchdown on a fumble by the visitors and Brown kicked goal, making 20 as the final score for the locals.

Next Friday afternoon the California Normal team will be the attraction at the ball park. This will be the last home game of the season, as Charleroi will meet Monongahela on the 20th at Monongahela, and Donora on the 25th at Donora. Lineup and score:

EDISON'S SURPRISING QUES.

It is more than surpriisng to hear that Thomas A. Edison is confidently working toward communication with the spirits of the so-called dead, for only a few years ago he asserted in a published article his confirmed disbelief in the possibility of a life after death. Now it appears that he has taken his stand with Sir Oliver Lodge and other confiding scientific investigators of psychic phenomena. As might have been expected, however, the practical-minded Edison does not seek to communicate with disembodied spirits through living human "mediums," but expects to employ a material instrument scientifically constructed. We read that he is "at work on a delicate apparatus" designed to demonstrate the possibility of "indisputable communication with the immortals. In other words, he will take no chances of being imposed on by clever fakers at this end of a supposed spiritual wireless but will himself tap at the hidden door by means of a "delicate apparatus" of his own construction.

Although this is shrewd as far as it goes or can go, it altogether ignores the concept of the spiritual world as super-material and entirely separated by dischete degrees from our realm of gross matter—a super-material world that can be reached or touched only through the human soul, which is in essence really a part of that super-material world and is only temporarily adjoined to an associated human body. Evidently Mr. Edison is working on the contrary theory that the spiritual world is only an upper or purer part of the material world and that the latter gradually merges into the former. It will be interesting to hear more about his unexpected experiments, but we may rest assured that he will stand utterly baffled on this side of a door which science will never be able to unlock.

GORKY IS INDISCREET

When Maxim Gorky, the Russian novelist, visited this country some years ago he became indignant and pretended to be surprised when he found that "free" America was too conservative to receive him socially in the company of a devoted companion who was not his wife. It was inevitable that so "advanced" a Russian as Gorky should be ready to gallop with the revolutionary gang headed by eLnine and Trotzky. Naturally Bolshevism would appeal to him as the harbinger if not the actual attainment of a very millennium of the kind of freedom which conservatives describe as license. So there was no surprise when Gorky undertook to inform the world of Lenine's surpassing greatness, giving him the rank of history's most able and advanced political refromer, in comparison with whom Clemenceau was only a "wicked cynic," Lloyd-George was merely one of the "professional murderers" who gained their ends at Paris, while President Wilson was but an "innocent romantic of democracy."

That was some time ago and Gorky has been and heard a good deal since. In consequence he now comes forward with a vigorous protest against the imprisonment and killing by Lenine of so many Rusisan scholars and scientists, characterizing such a policy as a squandering of one of the great assets of the Russia that is to be. Poor Gorky, in his disillusion, is indiscreet and he is likely to have to pay the price. He ought to know by this time that if the intellect and education of Russia insist on speaking plainly about the Bolshevik dictatorship they musttake the consequences and consent to be locked up or shot.

THE WORLD'S "SICKNESS."

The fundamental malady afflicting the world today is due to the fact that the noble spirit of service has been superceded by the selfish spirit of acquisition, according to R. H. Tawney, a British educator who writes on "The Sickness of an Acquisitive Society." Mr. Tawney is not thinking of the poisonous vegetable root, which in former times was believed to cause insanity, but rather of the New Testament's "root of all evil," the "love of money" for purely selfish purposes. He contends that for two centuries men have made acquisition the end instead of the means of happiness and freedom, with disastrious results both in the individual characters of men and in the conditions of human society.

But do men place their heaven in material gain very much more now than formerly? An affirmative answer to this question has been given by other thoughtful writers, including Carlysle, who contrasted the medieval spirit of service with the self-seeking of modern times. The attainment of political emancipaton was a great gain in itself, but complete freedom has tended to put man under the dominion of a new master—the selfish love of gain. This new slavery is now dominant throughout the world and the world is spiritually "sick" in consequence. Whether such a line of thought be widely intelligible and convincing or not, few reflecting persons will fail to agree that the old spirit of service is in need of far greater revival than is found and that the world's spiritual health is very seriously injured by the average man's pursuit of wealth as the chief purpose in life.

We have no time for post mortems. There is work ahead for us to do, a enormous amount of work ahead of us to do. This nation of ours must get out of debt. It is a colossal debt, something like twenty-four billions of dollars.

Our Governmental expenses must be cut to the bare bone. We must reorganize the business of the Government. It must be put on a sound working basis. All unnecessary help must go. All unnecessary departments must go. All red tape that makes for more salaries must go. All derlicts and drones must go.

Rigorous economics must be enforced in every phase of Government activities. Appropriation bills must be pared to the core. Little savings here, and everywhere in the Government's vast business amount in the aggregate to great big savings. Let the Government go to it with a will to save, to get out of debt, and we shall get out of debt. The way to economize is to economize; the way to get out of debt is to get out of debt. Let all the American people get back of the Government and make sure that it does get out of debt.—New York Herald.

NOW FOR ACTION.

The long hard fight is over. The issues of that fight were settled on Tuesday. They have passed into history. They are as water that has pasesd over the dam. It can turn no more wheels.

That diabodical scheme for the surrender of our national independence to a superstate through membership in the League of Nations has hal its hearing before the American people and the American people have given their answer. It is a crushing, humilitating answer for the advocates of the League.

Wilson autocracy, Wilson visions on the horizon, Wilson voices in the air, the Wilson weak, bungling, inefficient Administration—all these went by the board Tuesday with the

LINEMAN FOUND WIRE THIEF

Bull Moose Was Culprit Who Has Disturbed the Telephone Communication of Many Counties.

When the bull moose in the following story became tangled in a mass of telephone wire, it took a careful rescuer to get him free. The incident occurred in the Maine forest region north of Bangor. In the Electrical Experimenter, the lineman who was sent out to repair the damage describes his experience:

I took up the trail, and a couple of miles down, near Daisy Dam, I found the slack wire and the break, but, to my surprise, I could find but one end. Finally I found the other end 500 feet farther on. What had become of the 500 feet?

I soon found out when I got back to the break in the line. There stood a bull moose as big as a truck horse, looking straight at me, as much as to say, "Here's your old wire. Come and get it!"

The moose stood just at the end of the road, with six or eight turns of wire twisted tightly round his horns, several turns round his neck, and 200 or 400 turns of slack behind him.

Sneaking round, with the moose watching me all the time, I managed to get hold of the slack wire and hauled in until I got the end, when I made fast to a big tree. Then, cutting a good-sized sapling, I started toward the moose.

He began to sidle round, with head down, mane bristling and blood in his eye; it looked like war. Pretty soon, however, he managed in his circling movements to make a turn round another tree, which gave him much less scope, and when the wire came taut with his constant traveling he stumbled over it and fell in a heap.

Now was my chance! I sneaked up as close as I dared—maybe within 15 feet—and snipped off the wire with my pliers.

MIGHT BE HISTORIC VESSEL

History of English County Tells of the Capture of "Mayflower" by Dunkirk Privateers.

Aldeburgh, the little fishing town on the Suffolk coast, has, it is not at all improbable, the right to claim the Mayflower, the Pilgrim Fathers' famous ship, as her own. Aldeburgh, Woodbridge, Southwold were shipbuilding centers at the time of the Spanish armada and after. In 1590 Aldeburgh is recorded as possessing 24 fishing vessels of 20 tons each, of which 16 were new within eight years. At the close of the sixteenth century and at the beginning of the seventeenth the east coast of England was suffering heavily at the hands of the Dunkirk privateers. A 1628 certificate specifies 13 Aldenburgh ships, of the value of £6,800, lost between 1625 and 1627, of which four had been taken by the Dunkirkers. Of these 13 vessels two were of 350, two of 320, and two of 300 tons. In the "Victoria History of the County of Suffolk," the chapter on Maritime History, a footnote states that one of these 13 ships was a Mayflower and that not improbably this was the Pilgrims' vessel.—Christian Science Monitor.

Chemical Rubber Found.

The motorist who has been buying new tires will be pleased to read that Berlin has apparently produced at last an ersatz, or substitute, rubber which compares well, in essential qualities with the vegetable product and costs about two-thirds less. It is wholly a chemical compound. It may be used not only for tires, but for every sort of rubber goods.

So far this statement is based only upon reports considered trustworthy. No facts have been made known by the Germans as to the possibilities of production upon the great scale necessary for successful competition with genuine rubber, nor has the substitute been actually put on the market.

"Wireless telegraphy is new; wireless communication is as old as biblical times." With this statement the National Geographic society at Washington quotes from a communication by John A. Kingman, who sets forth the interesting theory that the island of Capri was an imperial wireless station of Ancient Rome. "We know that the ancients signaled in various ways and over long distances," he says. "They signaled by beacon fires by beacon smoke, by pigeons, by flags and by shouting from one sentinel to another."

Alike Anyway.

Four-year-old Mary had just come home from Sunday school and Uncle Ted was asking her what they did there. "Oh, a preacher talked and a man prayed and we sang," she exclaimed. "There was one song I liked. It is—" she studied a minute—"It is 'Turn the lights on in the basement.'"

Uncle Ted was surprised. That didn't sound exactly like a Sunday school song. A little later Mary's older sister cleared up the situation. The song sung was "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning."

Gasoline Production.

Production of gasoline showed a big increase during the first quarter of this year, 1,026,445,000 gallons being produced as compared with 808,335,500 gallons during the same period a year ago. Consumption increased about 30 per cent during the quarter and exports about 12 per cent. Increased rich Travel and Tourist Travel.

CRIMINAL COURT TERM IS NOW ON

The trial list for the November term of criminal court, which convened at Washington this afternoon at one o'clock before Judge James I Brownson, was completed by District Attorney Erwin Cummins on Saturday. There will be three weeks of this term of court, instead of two as heretofore. The trial list is unusually large, and the extra week will enable the commonwealth to dispose of all cases on time. Judge J. A. McIlvaine and James I Brownson will hear criminal cases this week, but during the two following weeks cases will be heard by Judge McIlvaine, while Judge Brownson will hear common pleas cases beginning Monday, November 15, one week earlier than usual The case against John Hogan for taking part in the Finleyville bank robbery will be called for trial on Tuesday, November 23.

COUNTY FOREST PROJECT IS FAVORED BY STATE

Considerable attention was given by the members of the State Forest Commission at their meeting in Harrisburg on Friday last to a proposition to reforest the hills of Allegheny county. The subject was brought up by Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence of Pittsburg, who had made a number of trips of inspection of country around the western metropolis of Pennsylvania. While the matter was laid over for further consideration, it appears to be generally approved by members of the commission as a project which will not be valuable, but make forestry of still greater popular interest.

Details of the plan to reforest the hills will be worked out in the next few months, and it is hoped to set out the first of the young trees next year. Co-operation of land owners will be asked, and it is believed, with free trees available next year through the extensive nursery operations proposed by the state, a big advance can be made in the first year or so. It is the idea of the state forestry authorities to establish a dozen nurseries to raise seedling trees in the southwestern counties. Some of the nurseries will be near Pittsburg

MONESSEN CLAIMS DISTINGUISHED HONOR

Louis X. Ely had that forethough and honor when he introduced the Senator at the banqut of the Monessen Board of Trade at which a number of Charleroi guests were present, although even Senator Harding paid little more than passing interest to the compliment.

COAL TAKES BIG DROP IN CONNELLSVILLE DISTRICT

Coal dropped to $4 a ton on the Connellsville market on Saturday last when the car supply reached the 100 per cent mark and buying lagged. This is a record low price since establishment of federal regulations. An average price of 18 cents a bushel is quoted for domestic fuel, a drop of 6 to 12 cents. Only a short time ago coal was selling in the Connellsville district for $10 and as high as $13 per ton. Prospects are that coal will not go again as high as it did during the summer and early fall months.

Following the dinner Mrs. Miller will make an address. Congressman Henry W. Temple will also be present at the dinner and make an address.

Hot Springs, Ia.—"From the time my daughter was 13 years old until she was 16 she suffered so badly each month, that sometimes I had to call in the doctor. She had headaches, backache, and such pains and cramps that she would have to stay in bed two or three days. She became terribly run down in health and at last a friend who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound told her about it and she has used sixteen bottles, and we always have it in the house. She feels fine now and she has no trouble at all each month. GLAND HELP WITHOUT MONKEYS!

Other Animal Glands Now Used in Tablet Form Combined with Iron

Many persons, attracted by the reports of monkey and goat gland treatment, are asking why the glands have such an important bearing upon health.

In explanation, it is said that the glands secrete tiny chemical elements called "hormones" and that the health and activities of blood and body cells are controlled in great measure by these "hormones." If the glands are run-down through sickness, physical or mental overwork or excess of any kind "hormone-hunger" is said to set in and ill health follows, attended often by such symptoms as nervous disorders, anemia and a general run-down condition.

In order that "hormones" may be supplied to the blood they are secured from the glands of animals, but now instead of monkey and goat glands, the extracts are often taken from the glands of sheep and cattle and instead of transplanting them by means of an operation they are now prepared in form of a small tablet. One such preparation, known as Glandex Compound contains other health building ingredients such as iron and is now being used by thousands as a constitutional tonic.

The Glandex Company, Inc, of 244 West 29th Street, New York, under whose formula Glandex Compound is prepared, authorize any druggist to return the purchase price, if after two weeks use results are not entirely satisfactory.

Note: $1,000 will be paid by the Glandex Company, Inc., to anyone proving that Glandex Compound does not contain genuine desiccated gland substance (popularly known as Gland Extracts) from sheep and cattle. For sale by Piper's Pharmacy and by good druggists everywhere.

Pepto-Mangan Makes Rich Red Blood and Lifts You Out of Bad-Health Ruts

From the time you get up in the morning till you go to bed at night you are tired. You feel as though you'd like to sit down and do nothing. You look tired and pale and haggard. You get careless about your dress.

No wonder! Your blood is all clogged up with poison. Your power of resistance is at a low ebb. Your blood needs food. It needs the help that the vitalizing tonic, Pepto-Mangan, will give it. Instead of feeling exhausted and tired out for months, you will soon pick right up and feel well and strong again. And with good red blood you are able to fight off ailments.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. It is prepared in both liquid and tablet form and you can take one or the other and receive the same benefits.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." Ask for it by the full name and be sure the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on the package. Advt

MONESSEN ATTEMPTS TO REGULATE TRAFFIC

Traffic regulations adequate for the town under the crowded and topographical conditions is being proposed in the Monessen council. This proposed new piece of vehicle law provides for making Donner and Schoonmaker avenue "one way" streets, with Mohawk and Eleventh streets the cross over streets for a continuance in the same direction. This much seems to be generally approved, as something must be done in that borough to relieve conditions.

Parking is privided in the ordinance, on the left side of the street with the vehicle headed with traffice. This part also appears to meet with public approval. Some minor details are yet to be worked out in the ordinance now pending before council and which as already passed second reading. Monessen like many other towns in the valley has great difficulty in handling the automobile question in the way of traffic and parking regulations.

BURIED 30 YEARS IN A TREE

Telegraph Bracket Completely Inclosed in Wood Is Found in California.

Thirty-six years ago a telegraph bracket and insulator was nailed to a Douglas fir tree near Arcata, Cal. A few years later a falling branch badly damaged it and the wire which it had been supporting was removed. The tree was growing thriftily adding every summer to its diameter a new layer of woody material, and the growth gradually pushed out around the bracket on all sides, leaving it buried in the tree trunk.

At the end of 26 years the top of the glass insulator finally disappeared from sight and the only trace of it that could still be seen was a scarcely noticeable lump which looked like nothing more than a healed-over branch stub. A few weeks ago the tree was felled and the wood manufactured into barrel staves. The screech of the saw which happened to graze the edge of the glass called attention to this unusual "fossil."

On splitting open the stave bolt the whole story became clear in all its details. The clearly defined annual rings of the rapidly growing trees form an unimpeachable historical record.

The wood of the insulator bracket is still in good condition and the oak of which it was made has received an unintentional preservative treatment, being thoroughly impregnated with the resin of the surrounding fir. The interesting specimen can now be seen in the wood collection of the forestry division at the University of California.—American Forestry Magazine.

TURKS TURN DOWN BUTTONS

Refuse to Use Them Because They Are Made From Bones of Dogs That Formerly Roamed Streets.

When I was in Constantinople I made friends with several of the pariah dogs that roved the streets, and though they had their drawbacks it always seemed to me that they were likable beasts, and not so great a nuisance as one would suppose they must be. I was therefore genuinely sorry when I learned that the remorseless march of progress had led to the determination to get rid of them. You will remember that the poor dogs were shipped off to various islands and there left to die, because the Turk would not transgress against his religion by killing them outright. That was five or six years ago and apparently the unhappy dogs all met their inevitable fate. Today numbers of Russian refugees are housed on the islands which were formerly the dogs' prison, and the American Red Cross authorities, who are caring for these particular refugees, have set their protegees to work at making buttons from the dogs' bones. I am not altogether surprised to learn that the Turks will not buy the buttons.—Near East.

1. Name the disease responsible for Hunchback?
2. Name a contributing cause?
3. Name some early symptoms of Tuberculosis of the Spine?

TUBERCULOSIS OF THE SPINE (POTT'S DISEASE)

When Bob Watson pulled the chair away as his younger brother was about to sit down; "It was just in fun," he said; of course it was—had he realized that serious results might follow, he would not have done it and Bob was very sorry—ever since he has been sorry.

Charles was severely jarred, he cried a little, then forgot about it.

Several weeks later he complained of pain in his stomach and his mother dosed him with castor oil.

His back hurt, he did not want to play. He fell into the habit of walking carefully, as if he were balancing something on his head; when he stooped to pick up things he did not bend over as other children, but stooped with a stiff back bending his knees. His pain became greater. A lump as if made by a knuckle of bone appeared over his spine; as it grew he became shorter.

His parents lived a long way in the country, roads were bad and doctors were scarce; the child had no medical attention.

That was twenty years ago—Charles lives today—a hunchback. All his life he has been handicapped by his appearance and by the physical weakness resultant from his deformity.

Hunchback is caused by "Tuberculosis of the Spine" known familiarly to medical men as "Pott's Disease."

Injury to the spine, while not the actual cause of Pott's disease, by offering a spot of bone weakness, affords the germs of tuberculosis a favorable point for multiplication and development. Tiny broken blood vessels allow a seepage of blood through the bone substance which arrests the germs which may have found their way into the circulation. Nearly every case of Pott's disease can be associated with an injury of greater or less severity, sometimes months before the earliest symptoms are noticeable.

The weight of the head, shoulders and chest are supported by the spine or back bone, which is made up of individual bones called vertebrae.

If we were to superimpose a number of flat padlocks, one over the other, we would have a column which might be said in some degree to resemble the backbone, the flat bodies of the padlocks taking the place of the bodies of the vertebrae and the hasps representing the ring of bone which surrounds the spinal cord.

When the presence of germs of tuberculosis cause the bodies of one or more vertebrae to decay, the weight, which the spinal column supports, pressing upon the weakened bone hastens the process; the bodies of the vertebrae give way causing a forward buckling of the spine and the characteristic deformity.

If the disease be recognized early and means be employed to place the affected part at complete rest, at the same time relieving it from the pressure caused by the weight of the upper part of the body, complete recovery may be expected.

This effect may be accomplished by the application of the plaster of paris jacket or by one or another of the various devices for relieving the spine from the support of the upper part of the body. Rest in bed—lying flat—is tiresome, but rational treatment.

The method of treatment employed depends upon conditions surrounding individual cases and should be left entirely to the physician in charge.

When deformity is actually present it cannot be corrected, but can be kept from getting worse.

Pain is an early symptom of Pott's disease, but is not always associated with the seat of the trouble; it may be referred to the stomach, abdomen, or legs. But sudden jarring such as is produced by stepping stiff-legged from a step almost always causes pain at the seat of the disease.

The same effect may be produced if firm downward pressure be made upon the head, the individual in question sitting up straight.

Injuries to the back are not often followed by Pott's disease, but it is well to keep in mind, they sometimes are, and that any part of the back bone is liable to attack.

Children with slight injuries get well quickly. If pain and stiffness persist and they appear to get worse instead of better, medical advice should be sought promptly.

BEGIN STRUCTURAL WORK ON COAL HOIST

Construction of the structural steel work on the new coal hoist for the Pittsburg Steel company was begun last week. Already some of the heavy upright pieces are in place, and it looks as if the work is to be pushed rapidly during the coming months. Coal and coke will be shipped by water to the hoist and then conveyed to the various departments.
